A REMINDER AHEAD OF EASTER

What do grapes and mini eggs have in common?

The Child Accident Prevention Trust says Cadbury's Mini Eggs are the 'perfect size' to get stuck in a small child's throat and block their airways, making them a choking hazard.

The charity suggests:

1. Hide them from the children and eat them yourself – good luck with that!
2. Put the mini eggs into a sealable plastic bag and smash them into small pieces with a rolling pin, or crush them in a pestle and mortar.
3. Opt for a different treat. Larger, hollow eggs are much safer for little ones.
